

Making Mediation and Peace Processes Work

Executive Leadership Programme

London | November 18-20

Making Mediation and Peace Processes Work is one of the world's leading programmes addressing the practical lessons, challenges and good practices in effective mediation and peace processes. Drawing on more than 40 years of experience from across Africa, Asia, the Middle East, Latin America and Europe, and lessons learned on the ground, the programme is highly practical and designed for practitioners and mid-career to experienced mediators and those working in mediation and peace process support.

Making Mediation and Peace Processes Work provides a space for experienced experts and practitioners from across governments, inter-governmental organisations and NGOs to come together to share lessons, address key challenges, and receive customised support to assist in the processes they are involved in. Implemented in partnership with the Department of Peace Operations and drawing upon the lessons gathered in the European Commission supported Peace Training Project, MPPW includes pre-programme support and engagement with participants, on-site customised training, coaching and technical assistance, and post-programme support.

If you are involved in mediation and peace processes, working in peace consolidation, or supporting implementation of dialogue and mediation programmes at local community, sub-national or national levels, this programme will be both professionally useful and personally enriching. Delegations and parties to mediation and peace processes may also apply as groups and receive additional customised support.

For more information or to apply please write to:
Ana David, IPDTC Global Lead at ana.david@patrir.ro
Or visit www.patrir.ro/training

At a Glance

Making Mediation & Peace Processes Work

London | November 18-20
Executive Leadership Programme (ELP)

For mid- to senior-career professionals, government officials and leadership, UN, AU, OSCE, and other inter-governmental staff and practitioners involved in mediation and peace process support. Some openings available for highly motivated early career and new-entry professionals.

Costs:

£ 450,- OECD

£ 350,- non-OECD

10% reduction
for IPDTC alumni

20% reduction
for groups of 2 participants or more

See the full brochure at: www.patrir.ro/training or write to training@patrir.ro

Deadline to Apply:

October 26th (for VISA payments)
October 8th (for non-VISA payments)

